Insurance.com wins ACG Cleveland Deal Maker Award

CLEVELAND, April 12, 2007 - Insurance.com, the largest online auto insurance agency in the United States, was recently the recipient of an Association for Corporate Growth's (ACG) 2007 Deal Maker Award.

As a recipient of the ACG Cleveland 2007 Deal Maker Award, Insurance.com joins past honorees such as Eaton Corporation, Parker Hannifin, STERIS, and other well-known Ohio companies.

"The Deal Maker Awards honor corporate and individual deal makers who have contributed inspiration, vision and creativity in completing acquisitions, joint ventures, financing and divestiture transactions," explained Tom Freeman, a partner with Grant Thornton and a member of the awards selection committee.

For the past 11 years, more than 50 companies and individuals have been recognized with the Deal Maker Awards. Each November, a selection committee of 25 M&A practitioners reviews nominations and meets to determine winners. The selection committee is chaired by Bill Koehler of KeyBanc Capital Markets.

Dave Roush, CEO of Insurance.com was pleased with the award: "We appreciate this recognition from the Association for Corporate Growth. It's a clear indication that Insurance.com is a solid part of the Northeast Ohio corporate landscape."
